The Debate has the subjoined abservations on the present position in Europe of the young King Houses. " For the last forty years the history of the House of Braganza, connected with the succession of events in Portugal, offers an incentestable interest. Buring a long reign, troubled by the ambitious attempts of Don Miguel, and often also by the agitation of parties. Queen Dona Muria was able to lay the foundation of a prosperity of which her son row reaps the fruits. Under the firm hand of that Sovereign. Portugal entered on a new era of tranquility and pro reas; en that whom Don Padro V., eldest son of Done Maria, mounted the throne, political rivalries were already preceptibly appeared; purty animosities had subsided; and constitutional principles bad become understood and respected. Don Pedro followed the course which the Queen had traced out through so hindy obstacles, and never belied the principles of true Liberalism bequeathed to him by his mother. Dying on Nov. 11, 1881, afhand him the memory of a popularity justiv soquired? Don Louis, 1., who succeeded to the Grounds at Poktooldar, may compied by throng at the aga of twenty-three has worthily Strusses & Ou. supported the traditions of his family in occomplishing useful reformes. By his attachment to Parliamentary institutions, of which he has very recently given strong proof in deficaty circumstances, he has gained for himself, the sympathies of the Liberal party. In his relations with foreign Governments, Don Luis on all occasions adopted a conciliators and mode rate policy. We may remind nor readers that when the Emperor Napolecia III. proposed the Sovereibgus of Europe the meeting of an International Congress to provent regrettable conflicts. Don Louis knew how to appreciate that generous idea, and was one of the first to send in his adhesion. Again, one a very recent occawere re-catablished on the most friendly footing through the good officers of the same Sovereign. Don Louis has toine to Primer this year for the third thine, having already visited it is 1865. and 1801. In these years he was Admiral of the baving a two-storied detached Granite Godown. Since his accession he has never ceased to take a deep interest in the progress of the navy and of the lefences connected THAT newly erected commodious Dwelling with it. From that latter country there are still no indications of shipments of cotton to Europe, but perhaps it is yet too early to judge of the effects of the great rise in China cot. ton in September and October. From Tarkey the accounts are aniform that a great falling off in the supply is cortain; owing to the curtailment of oultivation, caused by the heavy fall of prices in the spring; indeed, it is to this dame this we own shiefly the poor prospects of all the Eastern crops, for they were planted at a time when priecs were near the lowest, and vague fears felt of an overwhelming supply from America. The only country of importance from which an increased supply can be looked for is Brazil, and there it is reported that the crop is very large, and an increase of 100,000 bales (180 he each) is predicted Looking broadly at the quastion of cotton supply, it may be asserted that a scipply of 2,000,000 balos from the Southern States is wanted to keep up the extended rate of consumption in America. Great Britain and the Continent; but should that sorely-vexed supply turn out materially uses, quoprice seems to lie before the catton oppremer. A supply that would be wholly inadequate at 18d per B for long stapled cotton. may be abundant at 2s, and superabundant at 2s . 6d per h; and if prices in the early part of the senson advance too bigh, a congestion of trade would follow, and a nurfeit would ultimately be found at the very time when a famine was expected. It seems premature, to say the least, to expect famine prices before the American supply has been fairly launched upon the markets of the thoir own Boats and to receive the same on Stoworld, while several months at least will he re- rago in first class Grantza Godowns on modequired to got it properly digested. :
